1. ABOUT THE INITIATIVE

The European Green Pioneer of Smart Tourism is an initiative, implemented by the European Commission and currently financed under the Single Market Programme (SMP) – former COSME Programme. Its aim is to recognise and award smaller destinations that have implemented successful strategies to boost sustainable tourism through green transition practices.

The European Green Pioneer of Smart Tourism is the successor of the European Destinations of Excellence (EDEN) competition which was first introduced by the European Commission in 2007 as an initiative to reward non-traditional, emerging sustainable tourism destinations in Europe.

The 2025 European Green Pioneer of Smart Tourism is the second edition of the competition. Grosseto, Italy was the winner of the 2024 European Green Pioneer of Smart Tourism competition. Previous EDEN winners include Kranj, Slovenia (2023) and Middelfart, Sweden (2022).

This Guide for Applicants contains all the information destinations need to know, to submit an eligible application for the European Green Pioneer of Smart Tourism 2025 competition.

The destination showing the most successful strategies or green transition practices to boost sustainable tourism and convincing the European Jury with an exciting programme for the year in which they hold the title – will be awarded the title of the "European Green Pioneer of Smart Tourism 2025".

4. APPLICATION TEXT AND ASSESSMENT CRITERIA

In the application form, destination representatives will be asked to present the sustainability practices and green transition measures that have made the town a sustainable tourism destination. To give room to the overarching context, the destination will also be required to write an introduction, presenting their overall achievements as a sustainable tourism destination. This will be described below, under chapter “7. How to apply: Step by step”.

4.1 APPLICATION TEXT

Here you will find examples of what you can include in your application. These are intended to help you gain a better understanding, but they are by no means exhaustive, they serve as a general orientation. We encourage applicants to think beyond these examples and to demonstrate your destination’s specific cases, concrete actions and solutions.

The European Green Pioneer of Smart Tourism competition awards smaller destinations that have implemented successful strategies or measures to boost sustainable tourism through innovative and green transition practices. The competition also seeks to foster the exchange of best practices between European cities, by identifying successful and transferable measures that can work for multiple destinations.

Please describe the green transition practices (e.g.: projects, initiatives, legislative investments etc.) your city has implemented towards the goal of becoming a sustainable tourism destination.

These green transition practices should be related to one or more of the following aspects, but this list is not exhaustive, you may also include others:

- Managing / protecting natural resources in your tourism destination fully respecting environment and biodiversity
- Implementation of resource efficiency measures, more sustainable consumption (e.g., waste, water, energy)
- Measures aimed at reducing tourism seasonality
- Implementation of a scheme to measure sustainability of tourism destination
- Implementing measures aimed at climate adaptation
- Involvement of local communities, including social inclusion, through tourism, linking visitors with locals (sharing history, gastronomy, protection of nature, etc.)

- Balanced economic performance of tourism including sharing revenues with local communities, contribution to local employment, contribution to diversification of local economies, returning tourism revenues into local development

What has been the impact of these green transition practices? (please consider both the environmental impact, as well as the benefits for the local community)

How are the green transition practices that you have implemented, transferable to other tourism destinations? (What can other cities learn from you?)

4.2 ASSESSMENT CRITERIA AND GUIDELINES

Applicants are asked to describe concrete examples of measures that have been implemented with the aim of boosting sustainable tourism through green transition practices. How well a destination is performing will be assessed on the basis of the following four assessment criteria:

1. How significant is the impact of the green practices? And what is the level of innovation? (To what degree can we consider the destination as a “thought leader”?) Applying this criterion, the evaluating experts will assess how impactful the implemented measures are. They will also look at why these measures were innovative in the applicant destination.
2. How far does the local community benefit from the green practices? Under this criterion, the experts will assess the benefits of the measures on the local business environment and the local community. Detailed information about the tangible and, where possible, measurable impacts of the implementations, including delivering quantitative data on relevant indicators, will support the assessment.
3. How transferable / replicable are the green transition practices for other destinations? Applying this criterion, the evaluating experts will assess what strategies were applied, how they have changed the tourism experience and if they can be implemented in other cities.
4. How strategic is the commitment to a long-term green transition as a tourism destination? Under this criterion, the experts will assess the strategic, long-term solution-based approach, instead of just short-term problem fixing. It will also be assessed, how the results of the implemented measures are being sustained over time.

Remember: When describing your measures, please make sure to address the four assessment criteria above. The more specific you are in describing your best practices, the better the chance to score high in the aforementioned criteria. Please state how the measure(s) changed tourism in your destination, what impact it brought on tourism arrivals/ employment/ tourists satisfaction ratings. Give us concrete numbers, if you have them, and demonstrate the tangible, measurable results of your actions. Presenting tangible and measurable impacts of the measures implemented will increase chances of your application to be scored high.

5. THE EVALUATION PROCESS

5.1 EVALUATION STEP 1

All submitted applications, under the condition that they are admissible and eligible, will be reviewed in a pre-selection phase (Evaluation Step1) by a panel of independent experts in the field of sustainable tourism.

The experts will evaluate and score each application, on the basis of the assessment criteria (listed under 4.2). The evaluating experts will score them as follows (half marks are possible, decimals are not):

- For each assessment criterion the destination can score from 0 to 10 points.
- Overall, the destination can score a maximum of 40 points.

ASSESSMENT CRITERIA	POINTS
CRITERION 1: How significant is the impact of the green practices? And what is the level of innovation? (To what degree can we consider the destination as a “thought leader”?)	Min 0 – Max 10 points
CRITERION 2: How far does the local community benefit from the green practices?	Min 0 – Max 10 points
CRITERION 3: How transferable / replicable are the green transition practices for other destinations?	Min 0 – Max 10 points
CRITERION 4: How strategic is the commitment to a long-term green transition as a tourism destination?	Min 0 – Max 10 points
THRESHOLD	20
TOTAL MAXIMUM	40

In order to be shortlisted and compete for the title of the European Green Pioneer of Smart Tourism in front of the European Jury, applicant destinations must pass an initial threshold of 50 % of the maximum possible score (at least an average of 5 points in each of the four criteria).

The European Commission reserves the right to assess whether the number of applications is lower than expected, and to adjust the threshold accordingly.

A majority of points attained in one criterion cannot level out a missed threshold in another criterion.

Applicant destinations that received the minimum necessary score in all four criteria individually and hence pass the threshold will be ranked according to their overall score of all four criteria combined.

It is always the highest overall score of all four criteria combined that will determine on the qualification of a destination to be shortlisted.

A maximum of 4 destinations with the highest overall score will be shortlisted as finalists.

The four highest scoring cities among the European Green Pioneer of Smart Tourism applicants shall be then shortlisted.

If two or more applications achieve the same overall score and that would result in more than 4 potential top-scorers, an independent panel of sustainability experts and advisors will compare these applications against each other to recommend a maximum of 4 destinations to be shortlisted.

Based on the evaluation of the experts, the Commission will establish a shortlist of a maximum of 4 destinations, expanding the selection if multiple cities achieve the same score during the evaluation process.

5.2 EVALUATION STEP 2

In September 2024, applicant destinations will be informed if they are shortlisted, or not.

The shortlisted destinations will be invited to present their candidatures and the programme they intend to implement during 2025 as the potential European Green Pioneer of Smart Tourism, in front of the European Jury in November 2024.

Each finalist destination will outline its programme including the EU dimension of its actions. The destinations are free to propose the activities they deem relevant (promotional actions, events, marketing measures, launching of specific projects, etc.). The destinations will need to present how they foresee making the most of the title of the “European Green Pioneer of Smart Tourism” in promotional activities and raising its profile as a sustainable tourism destination. Destination representatives should describe the added value the title would bring to position the tourism destination as a ‘sustainable tourism pioneer’ and to attract tourists from third countries. The presentation should also further elaborate on how the title would contribute to foster sustainable tourism development and how the destination would involve other EU locations in promoting and disseminating green measures and best practices.

The finalist destinations will receive further guidelines on this presentation at a later stage.

The European Green Pioneer of Smart Tourism 2025 will be selected officially by the European Jury out of the shortlisted destinations.

6. ANNOUNCING THE WINNER

After the Jury Meeting, and still on the same day, the announcement of the winner will take place at a cocktail networking event, with the participation of all shortlisted destinations and the Jury members. The European Jury Meeting and the announcement of the winner will take place in November 2024. More details regarding the event will be communicated in due time.

For the participation at the Jury meeting and the announcement of the winner, the cost of travel and accommodation for a maximum of 2 nights for 2 representatives per finalist destination will be covered by the organisers.

8. PUBLICITY – PROMOTING THE AWARD

8.1 PUBLICITY BY THE WINNER

Both finalists and the winner must contribute to promoting the initiative, contest and its results, by providing targeted information to multiple audiences (including the media and the public) in a strategic and effective manner. Unless the Commission requests or agrees otherwise or unless it is impossible, any communication activity related to the action (including in electronic form, via social media, etc.) must:

- display the EU emblem

- include an agreed-upon text which will be decided at a later stage. The text will include the mention of the Award.

When displayed together with another logo, the EU emblem must have appropriate prominence. For the purposes of their obligations, the finalists and the winner may use the EU emblem without first obtaining approval from the Commission. This does not, however, give them the right to exclusive use.

Moreover, they may not take the EU emblem, or any similar trademark linked to the initiative for their own use, either by registration or by any other means.

8.2 PUBLICITY BY THE EUROPEAN COMMISSION

The Commission may use, for its communication and publicising activities, information relating to the action as well as any other material, such as pictures or audio-visual material that it receives from the participating destinations (including in electronic form). In order to better deal with press requests, it is recommended that all applicants appoint a dedicated spokesperson to directly react to specific queries.

The Commission will publish both the name of finalists and the winner, as well as the award's nature and purpose — unless they have requested to waive this publication (because of disclosure risks threatening its security and safety or harm its commercial interest).

Photos and videos taken by the Commission either in preparation of or during the announcement of the winner are the sole property of the Commission.

In line with the objectives of the initiative to foster sharing of best practices, the European Commission can publicise best practices submitted by the applicants during the application phase in the report/ compendium, on the website or by other means. With the submission of your application, you mark your agreement that the contents of the application and accompanying material can be used for this purpose.

8.3 LAUNCHING EVENT IN THE WINNING CITY

To mark the official start of the winning city's year as the European Green Pioneer of Smart Tourism, a 'Launching Event' will be organised. The launching event will take place in the 2025 European Green Pioneer of Smart Tourism within the first quarter of 2025.

The objective of the event is to kick-off the year of activities the winning city will implement as the European Green Pioneer of Smart Tourism and attract attention of media, local stakeholders, other European cities and tourism industry. The event will showcase the city's sustainable practices in tourism, the programme to be implemented and contribute to its EU-wide visibility. Wide media coverage and participation of representatives from EU institutions is foreseen.
